Maryam is a Muslim girl who lives in a small village in the West Bank. She is a bright and curious girl, but she is also deeply affected by the violence and conflict that surrounds her. Sarah Martine Julie is a Christian girl who lives in a wealthy family in Jerusalem. She is a kind and compassionate girl, but she is also sheltered from the realities of life outside her bubble.

Despite their differences, Maryam and Sarah Martine Julie become friends. They meet at a summer camp and quickly bond over their shared love of learning and their desire to make the world a better place. As they spend more time together, they learn to appreciate each other's cultures and perspectives. They also learn to challenge their own prejudices and assumptions.

Maryam and Sarah Martine Julie's friendship is not without its challenges. They face opposition from their families and communities, who do not understand why they would want to be friends with someone from a different religion. They also face danger from the violence that surrounds them. But through it all, they remain committed to their friendship and to their belief that love and compassion can overcome any obstacle.

Maryam and Sarah Martine Julie is a beautifully written and deeply moving story about the power of friendship. It is a story that will stay with you long after you finish reading it. This is a must-read for anyone interested in young adult fiction, women's fiction, or stories about friendship and the power of human connection.
